WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said Monday that if European Communist nations continue to raise tariffs against U.S. goods, the country may have to withdraw some of its troops from Europe.

"If the Common Market is going to make it impossible for us to trade with them," he told a reporter, "we cannot afford to keep up the kind of establishment we have in Europe."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that he wasn't talking about just the higher duties imposed on American chickens or other poultry. He said those were just a symbol of what he was referring to.

Food Poisoning Strikes 150

BRANTFORD, Ont. (AP)—Food poisoning struck 150 Americans Sunday night and early Monday on their way home from a religious gathering where they had eaten potato salad, baked beans and ham.

They had had a dinner, reported to have been catered, at Roman Catholic Marian Day exercises at Orchard Lake, Mich., and were en route home by bus when they became ill. None was in serious condition.

Most were women in their 60s, from Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania and New York. Doctors diagnosed their ailment as food poisoning.

Russians Help Raze Skopje

SKOPLJE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The city that was Skopje is in the throes of being torn down building by shattered buildings.

The Yugoslav army, aided by Bulgarian army dump trucks and Soviet demolition troops, is dismantling and carrying off the remains left by the earthquake that killed more than 1,000 persons here July 26.

About 500 Soviet troops arrived last week, reportedly from Hungary. Twenty-five miles away, American medics were wending up their mission of mercy at a complete field hospital flown in from West Germany.

Barnett Trying To Oust Meredith

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Ross Barnett renewed efforts Monday to bounce Negro student James Meredith out of the University of Mississippi.

He recommended that the State College Board delay Meredith's graduation, scheduled Aug. 18, until a report is in on whether he violated an Ole Miss directive against "inflammatory statements."

In a press release, Gov. Barnett said Meredith "publicly criticized the courts of Mississippi, the juries and public officials."

Hood To Take Hospital Rest

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Negro James A. Hood said Monday he will seek hospital care to quiet the physical and emotional strain which erupted during his brief interlude at the University of Alabama.

The slender, young Negro withdrew from the university Sunday in the face of charges which brought him to the brink of expulsion.

Pledging determination to re-enter the university, Hood said he would enter an unnamed hospital for "a complete rest."

Berlin Wall Anniversary

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police braced themselves Monday night for possible rioting on Tuesday's second anniversary of the Wall.

Despite official appeals to avoid demonstrations, there were indications that several thousand West Berlin youths will shout their hatred at the wall the East German Communists started to build Aug. 13, 1961.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels and a number of volatile issues made progress Monday as the stock market picked up its second straight daily advance on rising volume.

A fairly strong speculative flavor prevailed as the list advanced on turnover of 4.79 million shares compared with 4.04 million Friday. It was the heaviest trading since June 20 when 4.99 million shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 1.88 to 719.27.

Rusk Says Treaty Will Not Lull U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk assured a Senate hearing Monday that the limited nuclear test ban treaty is not based on trust of Russia.

He said it will not lull the United States into relaxing its vigilance. As Rusk opened the administration's effort to win support of two-thirds of the Senate for ratification of the pact, several senators indicated he had dispelled some of their qualms. But some shielded clear of taking a definite stand until after the military and nuclear experts testify.

After Rusk made his formal statement, he ran into a barrage of questions about the U.S., British and Soviet pact to outlaw all nuclear explosions except those underground.

His presentation was assessed in these words by Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois: "An excellent statement. There are a number of things he clarified, probably to the satisfaction of a good many persons."

But as to whether he would support ratification, Dirksen told newsmen he shouldn't be asked that until at least military officials testify. They are to testify later this week, as Rusk did, before the Senate Foreign Relations, with members of the Armed Services and Senate-House Atomic Energy committees sitting in.

Rusk told the senators this treaty may prove to be one of the most significant since the founding of the United States. He said the Soviet Union, like other nuclear powers, has looked "into the pit of the inferno" and has a common interest in putting at least a partial lid on the arms race, taking a small step toward avoiding nuclear war.

The search for more destructive weapons goes on even though the Soviet Union and the United States already have enough nuclear power to destroy each other, Rusk told the senators.

"Yet greater armament has not demonstrably brought greater security. The treaty, if observed, should slow this spiral without damage to our relative strength," he said.

Among other things, Rusk assured the senators that signing of the treaty by East Germany will in no way imply U.S. recognition of that Communist regime. Dirksen told newsmen he thinks Rusk has made it quite clear that the East Germans would not acquire "any advanced status."

Dirksen said Rusk also had given a "crystal-clear explanation" of the reasons for veto power for the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union over any amendment of the treaty.

Nuclear Arsenal
Assurances that the United States intends to keep its nuclear arsenal in readiness came in questioning by various senators, especially when Rusk said:

"I believe the United States must maintain a very large overall nuclear superiority keeping us with the ability to destroy an aggressor."

Rusk conceded that at least some members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff had had some reservations about a nuclear treaty.

But Rusk predicted that all North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations, except France, would sign the treaty soon. He added that he does not take the view that France will never sign at all and will continue its testing.

As for West German reluctance, Rusk said he had obtained promises from that country after he passed on assurance that neither the Soviet Union, nor the United States nor Britain need accept "a signature or an instrument of accession from authorities in a territory it does not recognize as a state." East Germany is among the governments which are signing in Moscow.

The Soviet Union may notify of signing by East Germany, Rusk explained. "We are under no obligation to accept that notification, and have no intention of doing so, but the East German regime would have committed itself to abide by the provisions of the treaty."

In response to questioning by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., former chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, Rusk said the policy is "that we continue with a full weapons development program underground."

Rusk said he believes also that the United States should maintain its Johnston Island testing ground.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., commented that the provision in the treaty under which a party may withdraw on three months' notice "could be a matter of life or death" for this country. He asked for assurance that "we will be prepared for immediate testing."

Rusk refused to be drawn into a discussion of whether the Soviet Union had refused to keep 50 to 52 agreements it had signed. He said he was not appearing as counsel for the Soviets but he would file a list of hundreds of agreements which have been invoked.

Dirksen said Rusk also had given a "crystal-clear explanation" of the reasons for veto power for the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union over any amendment of the treaty.

AFTER VISIT WITH MRS. KENNEDY—President Kennedy, along with his children, Caroline and John, Jr., make room for Charlie, the family dog, as they drive away from Otis Air Force Base Hospital after visit with Mrs. Kennedy. (AP Wirephoto)

Charlie (The Dog) Leads Kennedy Hospital Visit

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy took his family, including a pet dog, to see his wife Monday before he returned to official duties in Washington.

He delivered two books to Mrs. Kennedy, and stopped in again for 15 minutes just before taking off at 2:57 p.m. EDT.

Six days ago, the President hastened to this air base where his wife was undergoing an emergency Caesarian birth of her third child. The son, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, died in less than two days and was buried in the Kennedy family cemetery plot.

Monday, however, there were smiles and the President said goodbye to reporters who had been following him and his wife through the sad ordeal. The visits of Caroline, almost 6, and John Jr., who will be 3 in November, had been the cheering factor at the isolated barracks-like hospital ward where Mrs. Kennedy is recovering. And even their dog, Charlie, got in — to Mrs. Kennedy's room.

Caroline, solemn and shy, John Jr., energetic and entranced with the airmen who guarded his father, and Charlie, the frisky Welsh terrier, scrambled after the President. Kennedy let them fend for themselves on arrival.

A Secret Service man helped little John down, and Charlie, who had dashed off, had to be summoned back with a whistle. Finally, all went through the hospital door, the youngsters clutching sticks of chewing gum. Fifty minutes later they came out. And by now John, who loves airplanes and often inspects his father's big jets and helicopters, carried a small toy model of an RC121, the radar-communications plane used in early warning missions. The planes are used at this base on Cape Cod.

The little boy, in white shorts and blue and white striped shirt, paused to gaze at an airman at the hospital entrance standing at salute.

Caroline, in a pink and green flowered print shift, got a gift book, but no one seemed to know what it was.

The youngsters scrambled into the car, and all took the short ride to the helicopter which returned them to their Squaw Island summer home near Hyannis Port.

At the helicopter pad, Charlie dashed off again and the president whistled and clapped to get the dog aboard.

Dogs are not permitted in the hospital proper, but Mrs. Kennedy occupies a separate ward wing and there are no other patients in the vicinity.

"Today's proceedings have not developed that yet," commented J.L. Shattuck, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, AFL-CIO. He indicated readiness, however, to talk far into the night.

Earlier, another union official said that things were going "mighty well."

Vietnamese Girl Hatchets Wrist

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—An 18-year-old Vietnamese girl smashed her wrist with a hatchet on a stairway of Saigon's main Buddhist pagoda Monday night in a suicide attempt.

She was screaming incoherently and her dress was heavy with blood when she was found lying on the stairway outside Xa Loi Pagoda's main chapel, a Buddhist spokesman said.

She later made a tape-recorded statement saying she tried to take her life to help the Buddhist struggle against the Saigon government.

Pagoda officials had no knowledge beforehand of her act, the spokesman said.

The girl was identified as Mai Tuyet An, a Saigon University student. Monks said she had three letters in her clothing — one addressed to President Ngo Dinh Diem, one to Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, wife of the president's brother, and one to Buddhist leaders. The letter to Buddhists said:

"It is my turn to take my life. Sacrifice of Thich Quang Duc and Thich Duc Phong have been in vain."

Both those men burned themselves to death for the Buddhist cause.

The Buddhists accuse Diem, a Roman Catholic, of restricting their religious activities. They demand the government give them rights which they say would make them equal with members of other religions.

Treasury Asks Big Tax Cut To Break Economic Shackles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury proposed Monday an even larger tax reduction than President Kennedy suggested in January. First reaction to it by House tax writers was said to be favorable.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon submitted to the House Ways and Means Committee a proposed new set of individual and corporate tax rates that would bring about a net reduction he estimated at $10.635 billion, compared with the $10.320 Kennedy had outlined earlier. The reductions would begin in January.

He said the tax cut is needed, despite an economic pickup since January, to "release the economy from the shackles" of high taxes. Of the committee, at work for months on an omnibus tax bill, is expected to finish its work in about a week.

Dillon's presentation was given behind closed doors and the committee ordered it kept secret, but copies of the material he used were made public later. They showed that the treasury recommended:

Personal Tax

1. A new schedule of personal income tax rates ranging from 14 to 70 per cent, compared with the present 20 to 91 per cent. For taxpayers in what is now the lowest bracket, this would mean a 22.5 per cent saving. For those with taxable incomes below $9,000, the saving would average 15 1/2 per cent. In the top bracket the saving would be 23 per cent.

2. A cut in the corporate rate from the present 52 per cent to 48 per cent, including a special break for smaller firms through reduction of the rate on the first $25,000 of income to 23 per cent, against the present 30 per cent.

3. A schedule under which two-thirds of the individual cut and a bit more than half of the corporate cut would take effect Jan. 1, 1964, and the remainder one year later. The Treasury estimated this would amount to a saving of $6.5 billion to taxpayers during the calendar year 1964. The total reduction when the new rates become fully effective in 1965 was estimated at $8.5 billion for individual taxpayers, $2.1 billion for corporations.

Married Tax Payers

The following table, compiled from Treasury figures, shows what the new proposal ultimately would mean for a married taxpayer, with two dependents, who takes the average itemized deductions:

Dillon said his current proposals are "slightly less generous" than the President's original proposals to individual taxpayers with incomes under $10,000. They would get 59 per cent under the original plan.

Dillon said this change was necessary to offset the committee's rejection of a proposal to put a floor under itemized deductions.

Dillon contended that in spite of the tax cut now proposed the budget deficit for the fiscal year that started July 1 should be "not only well below the over-all $1.9 billion deficit projected in the President's January budget but also below the $9.2 billion contemplated in that budget."

In making the revenue projections, the Treasury took into account what has been called an "unlocking" effect — the belief that easier capital gains rates already approved by the committee will stimulate sales of assets which owners have been holding because of reluctance to pay tax at the present rates.

Dillon said the proposals are logical and appropriate despite some advance in the economy since January.

He argued: "The rate of unemployment has remained substantially unchanged... at a somewhat higher level than last year, and the long-range outlook—both for employment and for private investment—is not more promising today than it was last January."

Virginia County

U.S. Court Bars School Reopening

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals Monday knocked down a federal district court order for the reopening of public schools in Prince Edward County, Va., closed since 1959 to avoid classroom race mixing.

In a 2-1 decision, the court said the trial court could not tell the rural county it had to operate the schools until the Virginia Supreme Court makes an interpretation of state constitutional questions.

The court vacated the reopening order of Judge Owen R. Lewis and told him to keep hands off the case until the Virginia court acts. The state court has set arguments for its October term and a decision is not likely before November. After that the federal trial court may take any further action that it considers necessary.

Thus Prince Edward's 1,500 Negro children of school age face the prospect of a fifty year without facilities for formal education. White children in the county have been attending elementary and high school classes provided by the private Prince Edward Education Foundation. A relatively few Negroes have sought schooling outside the county and recently there have been volunteer teaching programs, mainly of a catch-up remedial nature.

Appeal Set

Attorneys for Negro plaintiffs indicated they would appeal Monday's Circuit Court decision to the Supreme Court.

The case of Prince Edward Schools — one of the four in the original 1964 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court which struck down public school segregation — has been before the federal courts, in one form or another, for 13 years.

Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S. C., who wrote the majority opinion for Monday's decision, commented at the outset:

"... This odd case, in its new flesh and pregnant with questions comes again before us."

But Judge J. Spencer Bell of Charlotte, N.C., who dissented, took his colleagues to task for failing to uphold the findings of the lower court and leaving the next move to the state court.

Failure to act, he said, was not merely abstention — as the majority put it — but was "abnegation of our plain duty."

Bell said either one of two reasons was sufficient for the court to make the lower court order effective at once.

Miss Blatt Tops Senatorial List

WASHINGTON (AP)—Miss Genevieve Blatt, Pennsylvania Secretary of Internal Affairs, was described Monday by Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., as the current front runner for the Pennsylvania Democratic senatorial nomination next year.

Clark said there are more than a half dozen top ranking Democrats whose qualifications for the Senate are impressive.

In addition to Miss Blatt, Clark listed these other possible candidates to oppose an expected reelection bid by Sen. Hugh Scott, Philadelphia Republican.

Former Gov. George M. Leader, who was defeated by Scott in 1958.

James M. Quigley, a former congressman from Pennsylvania and now an assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

'Space Voyage' Men Training

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP)—Seven men are scheduled to begin training Monday in preparation of a month-long simulated "space voyage" scheduled late this year.

All seven will be prepared for the rigors of the confinement in a tiny cabin with the simulated environment of a space station. Four of the "terranauts" will be sealed in the cabin for a month—the other three will serve as a backup crew.

The men are all employees of the missile and space division of General Electric Co.

The test is scheduled for later this year and will measure some of the effects of a heavy activity schedule on bodies and minds of men living in an artificial atmosphere.

The seven, all Pennsylvanians, are: Harry Lucas, of Stafford; Bill Merritt, of Plymouth Twp.; Ed Hoeller, of Whitpain Twp.; Bill Adams, of Levittown; Mike Dordick, of Holland; George Luttman, of Norristown; and Stuart Clerk of Shillington.

Forests-Waters Acquires Land

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton signed into law Monday a bill that gives the state Forests and Waters Department custody of the Kinzua Bridge and adjoining ground for development as a state park.

The measure appropriates $50,000 for the acquisition.

The new law authorizes the state to acquire the ground by gift, negotiated purchase or condemnation. The property will be named the Kinzua Bridge State Park.

Philly Gas Leak Probe Is Eyed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Paul D'Ortona, president of city council said Sunday he wants to get "all the facts" before deciding whether to order a council investigation into a chlorine gas leak which sickened some 400 persons Friday.

D'Ortona said he plans to ask the fire department and the department of licenses and inspections for full reports on the incident Monday.

The chlorine gas spewed from a broken tank car pipe and spread over an eight-block area around the Wonder Chemical Co.

Representatives of the licenses and inspections department will visit Wonder Chemical Co. Monday to check circumstances of the leak.

Sen. Clark Eyes Rice For Senate

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., feels that John S. Rice, U. S. ambassador to the Netherlands, would be a first-class candidate for U. S. Senator from Pennsylvania next year, the Philadelphia Inquirer said.

Rice, 64, was the Democratic nominee for governor in 1946 and later served in the Leader and Law office administrations as a cabinet member.

Welfare Bills Record Is Set

WORCESTER, Pa. (AP)—State Secretary of Welfare Arlin Adams says the state legislature passed more welfare bills in its last session than in any other session in history.

Adams, speaking before some 300 persons at the Variety Club's camp near this Montgomery County community, said 51 bills sponsored by his department were enacted. He said that 375,000 children are taken care of by various agencies of the welfare department, directly or indirectly.

Pittsburgh Light Firm Hit

Peaceful Racial Picketing

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Clapping, hands, chanting and singing, some 250 Negroes picketed the Duquesne Light Co. in downtown Pittsburgh Monday in a peaceful protest over what they called the firm's discriminatory hiring.

The protesters, joined by a few whites, ringed the nine-story electric utility building in Pittsburgh's first such major mass demonstration.

It came after a seven-hour session Sunday between Duquesne officials and Negro leaders. The parties reached an apparent agreement about midnight, but the talks later broke down.

A Duquesne Light spokesman said the two parties have agreed to hold another meeting later Monday.

The United Negro Protest Committee, an assemblage of various Negro groups in the area, scheduled the demonstration last week. Duquesne Light consistently has denied any discrimination in hiring. They said the small percentage of Negro employees was the result of a lack of qualified Negro applicants.

Scheduled Last Week

The Negro group has called for "compensatory hiring" in which Negroes would be given preference on new job openings. The utility rejected this plan, terming it a form of discriminatory hiring.

The vanguard of the marchers consisted of two Negroes carrying a large American flag. A loudspeaker atop a parked auto blared forth instructions and encouragement.

Two rings of demonstrators marched in opposite directions singing hymns and chanting, "Jim Crow must go!" and "Hey, hey, what do you say, let's go let's go!"

A dozen policemen were stationed around the building. Throngs of pedestrians including many office workers on their lunch hours, stopped to watch.

Byrd Brown, president of the Pittsburgh NAACP branch, said he was pleased with the demonstration. He said picketing would continue as long as it was felt necessary.

A Duquesne Light spokesman said operations were continuing as usual. Police said no one was being denied entrance or exit at the white-stoned building.

Soviet, Red China Strain May End In Envoys Recall

HONG KONG (AP)—Relations between the Soviet Union and Communist China have deteriorated to a point where some Western diplomats here are predicting Moscow and Peking eventually will withdraw their ambassadors from each other's capital.

They say that appears to be a logical result of plummeting relations.

It is very anyone here expects the two Communist giants to break off diplomatic relations entirely. Such a step would not serve the interests of either.

On the other hand, political experts here say the recent increasingly outspoken and abusive exchange between Moscow and Peking make some sort of diplomatic slap in the face practically inevitable.

Recall of their ambassadors, leaving their embassies under charge d'affaires, would be just the ticket, one Western diplomat said. It would express the contempt both Moscow and Peking have shown each other recently, while still maintaining the essential contacts necessary to their relations, he said.

By maintaining even limited diplomatic relations, the Soviet and Chinese Communists still could hold on to the theses they started proclaiming recently—that, despite their internal quarrels, they still are members of the same family.

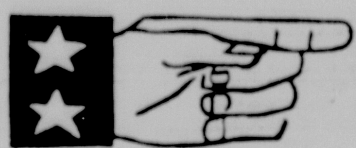

Soviet delegate Georgi Zhukov, who traded insults with his Chinese counterpart at the recent Hiroshima antinuclear conference, compared the dispute to a family quarrel.

"A bitter quarrel could take place in a family, but a family is still a family," he said.

The public nature of the quarrel continues to surprise veteran diplomats.

Many experts had expected the Communists to keep their disagreements as secret as possible, primarily to maintain the fiction of monolithic unity on which the spread of communism depended so much.

Farm Roundup

Share Of Consumer Dollar Lowest In 20-Plus Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—The farm share of the consumer food dollar dipped further during the second quarter of this year, winding up at 36 cents, the lowest in more than 20 years. It was 37 cents in the previous quarter.

By comparison, the farm share climbed to 52 cents during World War II. In the second quarter last year it was 38 cents. During the Eisenhower Administration it averaged nearly 41 cents. So far during the Kennedy administration it has averaged about 37 cents.

Department of Agriculture officials say the farmer's share of the food dollar has declined because of lower farm prices and higher marketing charges.

The department said marketing charges in the second quarter of this year averaged 3 per cent higher than in the like quarter last year. It said the charges were up mainly because (1) retail prices of beef did not decline as rapidly as farmers' prices of cattle; (2) retail prices of orange juice rose more rapidly after the freeze in Florida last winter than the prices growers received for oranges; and (3) marketing charges for bakery and cereal products rose significantly during the year.

Food Prices

Retail food prices were up one per cent from a year ago.

The department said consumers are spending an average of 19 per cent of their incomes for food, and the same as last year.

Civilian expenditures for farm-produced foods were said to be running at the level of about $65 billion a year.

The farm share was said to be about $21.5 billion, with the remainder going to marketing agencies to cover processing, transportation and distribution.

Of the marketing bill about $19.5 billion goes to labor, $4.4 billion to transportation, $2.2 billion for corporate profits before income taxes are deducted and the remainder, $17.1 billion to other costs, including packaging, advertising and the like.

The smallest share of the consumer food dollar ever received by the farmer was 43 cents, during the depression years of 1932 and 1933.

Effective control of grasshoppers with small amounts of a new formulation of malathion, a non-persistent insecticide, has been achieved in field tests by Agriculture Department scientists.

Spread By Airplane

The new formulation can be spread by airplane. It is described as nonpersistent because its residues last only a few days after application. It is expected to be valuable in controlling grasshoppers on Western ranges.

Exports of U. S. cotton textiles last year—the equivalent of 460,000 bales of raw cotton—hit the lowest level since the middle of World War II.

Reporting this, the Agriculture Department said that imports of cotton textiles last year were the equivalent of 644,600 bales of cotton, or 119,100 more than the record set in 1960. Thus the cotton trade deficit was 186,600 bales.

Textile exports have declined at a rate of about 6 per cent a year since 1960, while imports have moved upward at the average annual rate of 22 per cent.

Higher prices paid for cotton by domestic mills and higher wage rates than are paid in many areas abroad were major factors in this export decline.

Seat belts in your car are life savers.

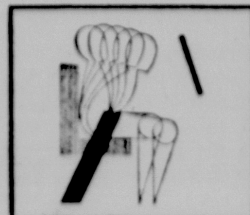

But only if you use them every time you drive—even though you're going only a few blocks or miles.

Because traffic accidents happen without warning, and more often close to home than away on a trip. In fact, 2 out of 3 traffic deaths occur within 25 miles of the victims' homes.

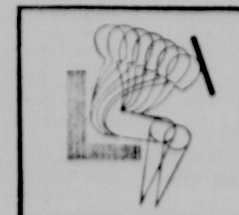

And do seat belts work? They certainly do.

The National Safety Council estimates that if everybody had seat belts and used them, at least 5,000 lives could be saved each year, and serious injuries reduced by one-third.

Be safety wise. Join the millions who have had seat belts installed, and use them. Every time you drive, buckle up for safety.

With seat belts. When your car stops suddenly, you "stay put" . . . with a vital Margin of Safety between you and serious injury or even death.

Without seat belts. When your car stops suddenly in a collision or emergency, you are flung forward with tremendous force—into dash or windshield.

Election Board Throws Out Tobyhanna Eastern Vote

STROUDSBURG—Monroe County Board of Election yesterday voted to throw out the entire vote of the July 30 special election in the eastern district of Tobyhanna Twp.

By the ruling, Robert G. Bartlett, Republican, lost 248 votes and Fred B. Rooney, Democrat, lost 134 votes in the district. Rooney won the election for Representative in the 15th Congressional District.

The action of the election board yesterday now gives Bartlett an official total of 6,281 and Rooney a total of 5,199 votes. Included in the figure are 49 absentee, and six military votes for Bartlett. Rooney's total includes 28 absentee and five military votes.

John R. Lesoine, chairman of the board, said, "We are discounting the entire vote in the district due to the fact that more votes were tabulated on the machine than the number of indicated voters."

He continued, "The law is very clear in this case. We are unable to justify the 16 votes. We can not find out how the error happened, so we are discarding the entire vote. However, the official vote will show one vote for Bartlett in this district. This vote was a military ballot cast in the district and it will be counted."

16 More Than Listed

An error of 16 votes was discovered by the board when the official count was made. Figures on the official ballot agreed with the public counter and the voters list, but the protective counter showed 16 more votes cast than the other two listings.

The board, employees of the county, and members of the voting district election board met yesterday at 2 p.m. in Tobyhanna Twp. Firehouse at Pocono Lake in an attempt to justify and correct the error.

First questioned was Harry Walton, an employee of the county who was one of two county employees to ready the machine for voting.

Walton said, "Charles Shimer and I set up the machine here in the voting poll. As part of our job we set all meters to a zero reading. After this was done we double checked as we do when we set up a machine."

Shimer was next to be questioned. He verified that the meters had been set to a zero reading and that both men checked the machine and the meters before they readied the machine for voting.

Mrs. Mary Davis, judge of election; Mrs. Iona Altomose, minority inspector, and Mrs. Gladys Alberts, majority inspector, all made statements. Each said the machine was opened on election day before the polls opened, and that all meters registered a zero reading.

They agreed that no one had opened the machine until after the polls were closed.

First Noticed

Mrs. Davis said, "I called the county election board just a few minutes after the polls closed. It was at this time the difference in numbers was first noticed."

The county board of election voted to wait 30 days, from the date of election, and then open the machine and check it. They will notify the manufacturer of the machine to send a representative to Monroe County to see if there was a mechanical failure in the machine.

County, State Plan Pocono Creek Talks

STROUDSBURG—Monroe County commissioners yesterday instructed H. Ray Saunders, chief clerk, to notify three state departments to have representatives at the Thursday, Aug. 22, meeting.

The action followed a flood control discussion, and on the spot inspection of Pocono Creek in the area off Tanite Rd. and the construction of Rt. 80 in Stroud Twp.

The commissioners are asking representatives of the Department of Forests and Waters, Power and Resources, and the Department of Highways to attend an Aug. 22 meeting in Stroudsburg.

Chairman of the Board of Commissioners John R. Lesoine said, "I have been told that people in that area are a little worried about the width and depth of the creek. Those who have talked to me about the condition are afraid of the possible high water following heavy rainfall."

The point of discussion centered around the area of the creek where, during the 1955 flood, a section of the road was washed out. The depth of the creek now is about 12 inches and the width is about 15 feet.

Width Narrowed

The commissioners feel that the width has been cut down due to construction of Rt. 80 in the area. Commissioner Willard Quick said, "It is our hope to have the creek deepened and that one of the departments we are asking to come to our meeting will accept the responsibility of the job."

In other business the commissioners met with officials of Children's Aid Society for their monthly meeting and report.

CAS was represented by Charles Jones, executive secretary, and Rev. Joseph N. Carr, vice president.

Jones reported that during the past month the case load for July was 135 children.

His report showed one girl was married and released from CAS, one child was dismissed to its mother's care, one was returned to its father for a one year probationary period, one remained in a foster home on post placement counseling, and another sent from a foster home to an institution.

Jones described the location of the 135 children as follows:

In foster boarding homes, 45; in private boarding homes, one; in private foster home, one; in out of county adoption home, one; in institutions, six; in Hershey School, one.

In protective care in the child's own home, 68; family counseling, five, and post placement counseling, seven.

Award Contract

The commissioners also awarded Tillman C. Hawk, of Cresco, a contract to drill a well at the courthouse. His low bid was $800 and $5.50 per foot for every foot beyond the 100 foot mark.

Mel Fehr, of Snyder'sville, was the only other bidder. His bid was $819.25 for the first 100 feet and $8 a foot for each additional foot.

Unknown Artist Boy, 8

EAST STROUDSBURG—The "Search for the Unknown Artist" conducted by the Pocono Art Center ended happily yesterday with the solution to the mystery of who painted the painting judged "the most original" in the contest held in conjunction with the weekend "penny-pitch" for painting the Erie-Lackawanna railroad station.

The now-known artist is eight-year-old Gordon Dugan of 240 South Courtland St., East Stroudsburg. With other prize winners he will receive his prize of art supplies at the presentation to be held today.

Marcel Clapp DeRocco, president of the Art Center which is sponsoring the community project designed to turn the railroad station into an art gallery, reported that children had flocked to the painting competition, and had assisted in keeping the fountain area clear of the debris that grown-up dropped during the exhibit.

They were so sorry to see the informal art center close that Mrs. DeRocco issued an invitation to them to join adult artists in painting there when the station, rented for $1 a year from the railroad, has been transformed.

AFL-CIO Out To End Bias

UNITY HOUSE (AP)—The AFL-CIO announced yesterday that an immediate effort will be made in Cincinnati, and probably in Washington and Boston later, to end discrimination in unions, particularly in the building trades.

At the opening of its four-day midsummer meeting, the executive council of the AFL-CIO also began a discussion of the planned civil rights march on Washington Aug. 28, but put off taking a stand on the matter until Tuesday. The council is split on whether or not to back the march.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, who last month announced a major national campaign aimed at eliminating job bias, told a news conference he had appointed a staff committee to start a campaign in Cincinnati at once. The committee's members include Donald Slatman and Walter Davis of the AFL-CIO civil rights department.

Meany said the staff committee will try to get local trades union officials to take the initiative in enlisting local citizens civil rights committees to combat discrimination "so that labor plays a full part."

Started in Denver

Meany said that such a program has been started in Denver by the Colorado State Federation of Labor, providing for monthly meetings of local groups.

Meany said that during the two hour closed session of the council there was a very good discussion of how far the AFL-CIO should go in supporting the civil rights march. He said different viewpoints were expressed, with some members backing the march and others speaking to the contrary.

Expressing his own personal views, Meany said: "I am in complete sympathy with the objectives of the people behind it. I am completely convinced of their right to march. I am as yet unconvinced whether it will be helpful in civil rights legislation this year."

Urban Renewal Policy

The Monroe County Redevelopment Authority's two East Stroudsburg renewal projects have encountered some delay because of new federal regulations concerning urban renewal.

The Urban Renewal Administration is requiring the authority to produce letters of intent to buy land written by developers willing to commit themselves to investment in the projects.

At the same time it is requiring the redevelopment authority to get an "annual contribution contract" from the Monroe County Housing Authority assuring the government of public housing for families which cannot be relocated otherwise.

Both requirements must be met before final federal approval of funds.

There are 107 housing units in the 61.69-acre Lincoln Ave. renewal area, and 17 families in the South Courtland St. renewal area.

The problems of relocating families and businesses are not simple or pleasant. They are actually the highest price any community pays for renewal of decadent land, in terms of human dislocation and the disruption of normal life.

After some stumbling years of urban renewal experience across the country, the federal government has learned a lesson and has changed some of its basic regulations in this important field.

East Stroudsburg is one of the first communities to feel the effect of these improved regulations.

It is being forced to hold some insurance against creation of a wasteland after purchase and demolition of present properties by the requirement of letters of intent to rebuild the area.

It is also being forced to hold insurance against creation of new slums or brutal dislocation of poor families.

Many communities in America are going through urban renewal programs without this advance insurance of success.

Many American communities have torn down large sections of taxable land—creating more downtown parking space at least—without the slightest idea of who would buy the land, redevelop it, and get it back on the tax rolls.

And many communities are suffering the human and economic misery of families forced to move out of urban renewal areas into worse areas of blight. That is against urban renewal law, but it has happened in many cities.

East Stroudsburg is actually blessed by these requirements. It apparently will not have great difficulty in meeting them.

Almost all of the land in both projects has been spoken for, and additional public housing is already in the planning stage. The requirements, rather than hamstringing East Stroudsburg, should help the redevelopment program to success.

Liberal Arts Program

The East Stroudsburg State College undergraduate liberal arts program starting this fall will enrich the curriculum of a previously teacher-oriented college.

It will also give area students an opportunity to get a broad liberal arts college education without the expense of traveling far away to more expensive colleges.

In both respects, the new program makes East Stroudsburg State College a more valuable neighbor.

The program is starting off in 10 major areas—four in the natural sciences, three in the humanities and three in the social sciences.

It will grow as admissions and faculty grow. And it will improve in curriculum quality as it gathers momentum and experience. The college also plans to start graduate level courses.

The new liberal arts program is a step forward in education for the college, its students, and the community. We welcome it and wish it success.

Mystery Debriefing

By George Dixon

Washington, Aug. 12 — Four separate and distinct senators, returning from four separate and distinct missions abroad, have come to me within the last four weeks, with the same disquieting piece of intelligence. They had no contact with each other while overseas, yet each was subjected to the same baffling experience.

Each was contacted by a U.S. State Department official in a foreign capital and told he would have to be "debriefed."

All four informed me, individually and independently, that they never did find out why they had to be debriefed. In fact, they swore up and down they never even found out what a debriefing is.

The Salons have a wide acquaintance with official gobbledegook, but debriefing was new to them. Although all of them are reasonably familiar with the simpler English words (one is a university professor) they said they couldn't make head nor tail of what the State Department wanted of them.

The experience of the professor was almost identical with that of his colleagues. Let him tell it in his own erudite way: "I had been in this foreign capital several days when I received a telephone call. The caller introduced himself as a State Department representative and said he must see me right away. Naturally, I inquired what for.

"He replied: 'I've got to come over and debrief you.'

"I explained, in standard English, that my trip involved no security angles. The state department representative said it didn't matter. 'I'd have to be debriefed,' I remonstrated. I asked him: 'I haven't been briefed, so how can I be debriefed?'

"The fellow replied that it wasn't necessary to be briefed in order to be debriefed. He said that if I would see him he could perform the debriefing in one sitting.

"I was overcomen with curiosity by now, and I invited him to come right over. He arrived — but all he did was ask me if there was anything about the country we were in that I would like to know; and whether there was anything the State Department could do for me.

"I said I couldn't think of anything offhand. He replied that, in that case, the debriefing was over."

I asked the four lawmakers if they proposed to inquire into the mystery. All said, in effect, that they felt it might be better for them to remain mystified.

The Republican senatorial campaign committee is carrying on a long-distance telephone game with H. L. Hunt, Texas oil tycoon. Hunt phones the committee from Dallas nearly every day, and sometimes as much as three times a day. He proffers advice on many subjects.

The committee, however, doesn't want advice from Hunt as much as it wants money. It hints as broadly as the side of a Texas barn that Mr. Hunt kick in with a contribution.

But Mr. Hunt never quite seems to get the message.

The oilman invariably ants to know "What's going on up there in Washington?" A member of the committee attempts to give some sort of answer, before putting the bee on the billionaire again. Its become a weird sort of contest, with the committee losing every round so far.

No member of the GOP fundraising outfit has quite summoned the temerity yet to suggest to Mr. Hunt that the reason he is playing coy is that political contributions are not tax deductible. But all are sorely tempted; almost every day.

They suffered their sorrest temptation lately. They told Mr. Hunt they needed funds to combat anti-Democrat trends in North Dakota. Mr. Hunt said he'd do something about a situation so parlous.

He did. He sent a batch of pamphlets on how to fight Communism.

Try and Stop Me

After a particularly gay party at a particularly gay convention, two members in good standing had retired to their hotel room, where one member slipped on the bathroom floor and sustained several cuts on his face. His friend patched him up as best he could with bandages. The injured one then went over to inspect himself in the bathroom mirror. A look of awe came over his battered visage. "Jimmy, Tom," he murmured respectfully, "I didn't know you could afford a Picasso."

Warning broadcast by Tom Poston: "Beware of the girl who runs her fingers through your hair. She's probably after your scalp."

Guns Of August

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — When Governor Scranton the other day signed into law Pennsylvania's "new" school district reorganization law, it marked the end of one of the most unique and acrimonious episodes in the Keystone State's red schoolhouse history.

Even now though with the heavily watered down new principles and concepts of reorganization as spelled out in the newly-approved legislation, there is great and considered question as to whether this latest version will succeed — amount to more than a hill of antiquated textbooks.

The old Act 561 has gone by the blackboard eraser under the new statute — a victim of repeal, retrenchment, political buffoonery, acid opposition on the part of segmented groups, and oftentimes a general misunderstanding.

Curiously some of the key facets of the "old" reorganization law (enacted only in 1961) have been retained in general perspective under the just signed new law. To illustrate: The 4,000-plus district theme remains — but without the adequacy of the old law; the number of school districts will be chopped down sharply — but not with the arbitrariness of the old law. (Under the present program the current 2,100 districts will be clipped to around 500 where Act 561 would have knocked the number down to around 300.)

There are "loopholes" galore in the new act to give vent to petty local ideologies — whereby the State Board of Education will have a galaxy of "outs" for not forcing this or that district to consolidate (such as a class-conscious wealthy district simply not desiring to combine with a poorer district — although this of course will never be the official and formal reason given).

The history of the entire educational fracas revolving around old Act 561 is a somewhat fantastic one when you stop to look at all the factors involved.

Perhaps the most critical facet generally overlooked is that the program envisioned in Act 561 initially was not the program of a pack of political-legislative hadies — rather it was the blueprint of a top-flight panel of non-political lay and educational experts, most of whom studied and evaluated their findings in more depth before recommending, than many would follow in their own business!

The issue became a partisan issue when it flittered into the legislative arena under the sponsorship of the then Democratic Lawrence Administration — which peculiarly enough did not present it as its "own" program but simply the program of the study committee with the "endorsement of the Lawrence Administration.

It wasn't until it hit the legislative firing line that the issue developed as an issue — with Democratic lawmakers lining up almost solidly in favor of the bill and anti-administration Republican lawmakers lining up almost solidly on the other side of the fence.

That set the stage — inadvertently at first — for the gubernatorial campaign last fall.

If nothing else, what happened to old Act 561 shows what can be done by a vocal, determined and yet somewhat hodgepodge lobby effort!

Governor Scranton in signing the new bill admitted that he is "not entirely satisfied" with it in its present form — a view held by many.

Other changes in forthcoming legislative sessions will be upcoming, most lawmakers concede, but what is more interesting than anything else is the fact that many a lawmaker feels that eventually Pennsylvania (in transitional process) will wind up with the fundamentals provided in old Act 561!

The political arena in the campaign and legislative halls killed the old law; the same arena may well see its revival, per se, in the years to come.

Chiefs For Treaty

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington—President Kennedy personally induced the Joint Chiefs of Staff, with one exception, to switch from opposition to the nuclear test ban treaty to qualified support of it.

This dramatic backstage about-face by the top military leaders was brought about by the President's using both his personal prestige and great power as commander-in-chief.

At this writing General Curtis LeMay, Air Chief of Staff, continues opposed to the pact. He is the only member of the Joint Chiefs adhering to the position all of them originally took in a policy paper they submitted to the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee last month.

General Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman, and General Earle Wheeler, Army Chief of Staff, changed their views after lengthy talks with the President. General Wheeler has some reservations, but now is supporting the President.

Admiral David McDonald, who replaced Admiral Robert Anderson as Chief of Naval Operations on August 1, is for the treaty. Admiral Anderson, new U. S. Ambassador to Portugal, joined the other Joint Chiefs in their original disapproval of the treaty. White House insiders credit the President with winning over Generals Taylor and Wheeler by stressing two points: Their opposition would seriously damage U.S. prestige, and would react against the military services.

The President told them that while he expected their support for the pact, he had no objection to their expressing any misgivings they had in response to congressional questioning — so long as they did not come out against the nuclear accord.

Boxing Them In—In the President's talks with the Joint Chiefs he made much of the claim that a careful White House poll of the Senate had shown that well over two-thirds favor the treaty. On that ground, the President argued, military opposition would only cause disunity and reduce the margin of senatorial approval.

"If by some chance the Senate should fail to ratify this treaty," the President warned, "it would be the worst blow to this country's prestige since the Russians launched their Sputnik. It would be a diplomatic Pearl Harbor."

Repeatedly the President assured the Joint Chiefs that he would not let the treaty undermine the country's military strength, pointing out he was firmly against cutting the Defense budget.

In pounding home this argument, the President opened one night meeting with the Joint Chiefs by telling them he had conferred by phone with Representative George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on defense, and had obtained his support to restore $1 billion of the $2 billion slashed from the military budget.

As related by the President, Mahon had agreed to increase defense funds from $17 billion to $18 billion (approximately $1 billion under the administration's original request) when the budget is considered by the Senate-House conference. The House-passed measure is now pending in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Escape Clause—The so-called escape clause in the treaty, permitting participants to withdraw 90 days after serving notice, figured prominently in the President's unavailing efforts to win over General LeMay. The President contended this provision gives the U.S. ample safeguards.

"If convincing evidence is forthcoming that the Soviet has conducted secret nuclear tests or made a breakthrough that threatens our security," the President told the Air Chief of Staff, "we will instantly use this 90-day escape clause and withdraw from the treaty."

"That may be so, Mr. President," replied LeMay unconvinced, "but the Soviet may have made that breakthrough in their last series of super H-bomb tests. I feel strongly that we should first learn the full implications of those tests before entering into an agreement with the Russians. Otherwise, we are taking a tremendous risk."

But with the other Chiefs of Staff, the President's views won the day. Accompanied by Defense Secretary McNamara, General Taylor will tell the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he approves the treaty. He will be followed by General Wheeler and Admiral McDonald who will do likewise.

Meanwhile, General LeMay is again to confer with the President before testifying.

Treaty Fallout—Dictator Fidel Castro is sounding off about signing the nuclear test ban agreement. The Communist puppet ruler is telling foreign diplomats in Havana that he approves the pact and proposes to have Cuba become a party to it . . .

Speaking Of Your Health:

Resources For 'Extra-Duty'

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

The human body has many sources of reserve. "Saving for a rainy day" is one of the techniques the body employs to house and store energy for use on special occasions.

The body has its own special "heart fund" or heart reserve which is called on when there is a particular strain placed upon it.

Extra Burden Heavy work or exertion puts an extra burden upon the heart. By a remarkable system of intercommunication, the heart reserve is notified and immediately responds. We may not even be aware that the heart is putting forth this special, added effort because it compensates so readily and quickly to meet the need.

Same Process

Similarly, when a mountain climber feels that he no longer can go a single step farther, the same process of communication takes place between his fatigue and his muscular reserve. This additional spurt of released energy carries him up another incline, perhaps to the very peak itself.

When the liver, during a phase of disease, is in need of an extra supply of sugar, its reserve is called upon to function in that emergency.

In various forms, the body continues quietly and efficiently to accumulate this storehouse of chemicals, vitamins and body defenses. But it is not aware of its reserve until the need arises to call it into play.

Ready To Meet Need

There also is a vast storehouse of emotional reserve which we build up over the years by learning and experiencing by the solution of problems, by decisions, good or bad. This emotional warehouse is filled with limitless energy waiting to be released when the need is urgent.

We call upon this store of emotional reserve daily to help us encompass normal life situations. It is a treasury of experience and faith and belief in one's own judgment and personal integrity. Its accumulation is a slow, ever-growing, never-ending process. Sometimes its growth is barely perceptible. But through all of life's successive experiences, this reserve of emotional energy continues to develop. Periods of great stress bring forth as a great opponent and destroyer of anxiety and fear.

Something New Added

When each new problem that arises can be settled in a positive mature manner, something is added to that storehouse of emotional reserve. This emotional energy is the sum total of any man's know-how of adult living.

Sometimes, it takes an overwhelming experience to uncover the body's wealth of physical and emotional reserve. This explains why some people, who give all the evidence of being inadequate, frightened and unable to handle life situations, are sometimes so unexpectedly competent. When they come face to face with the reality of a serious problem they are able to call on their hidden supply of inner resourcefulness.

About Town

A father sent his two sons into the hills on a cold night to herd sheep. Later he went out to see how they were getting along. He found one son dutifully watching the sheep and asked, "How are you?"

"Fine Father," replied the son, "but my lamp has gone out and I am cold." Whereupon the father gave the boy a new wick for his lamp. The father then came upon the second son, who was fast asleep under a tree. He woke him and asked, "How are you?"

"I am, cold Father," the boy replied, "and need a new wick for my lamp."

The father shook his head and said, "You shall not have it. There is no wick for the rested."

Eastburg, Irish Schools Compared

By Rod MacLeod
Daily Record Photographer

IT STARTED out as a typical morning for Carl Secor, supervising principal of East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School. Mail to be opened, reports to be analyzed, student conferences, and a host of other chores piled high on his desk. The "obstacles" made the day a busy one considering mid-summer hours.

"A Mr. Mark Keegan to see you sir," said Miss Ruth Mackes, efficient and attractive secretary to Mr. Secor.

With the short introduction the day was changed from the "hum-drum" to one of quiet charm as Mr. Keegan with an Irish brogue on his tongue and a glint of elfin glee in his eye, glided into the office.

"I hope that you have a little time to talk about high schools," he said.

"I am principal of Mary Queen of Angels junior-senior high school of Dublin, Ireland, and am most

Cottagers Seen Buying Lake Ariel

LAKE ARIEL — Negotiations are under way by a group of Lake Ariel cottagers to purchase the lake, it was reported yesterday.

The lake was purchased in 1964 by A. J. Schrader of Maple Lake, and George W. Huss of Ringtown. The reported price was $100,000.

About 30 cottagers comprise the group which is negotiating to acquire the ownership. The amount of money involved was not disclosed.

The sale, if it materializes, would apparently end all possibilities of the state acquiring the lake.

This possibility had existed several months ago when Forests and Waters Secretary Maurice K. Goddard met with a group of cottagers to discuss the matter.

At that time Dr. Goddard admitted the state was evaluating the lake as a recreation area.

The sale would involve the lake and surrounding land, which includes the 45-acre tract formerly occupied by the Lake Ariel Amusement Park.

It was learned that the cottagers have no plan for reactivating the park if the purchase goes through.

Lake Ariel, in Wayne County, was known as "the amusement area" of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Saylorsburg RD 1 Man Jailed

EASTON — Milton Yetman, 37, of Saylorsburg, RD 1, was committed to Northampton County Prison Saturday night in default of $2,500 bail on two counts of sodomy and one of corrupting the morals of minors.

Yetman was arrested by Det. John Young in Lower Hackett Park and said he was involved with two Easton youths, eight and 11, Tuesday near the pond in the park.

According to a police report, he made plans to meet the boys again on Saturday. One of the boys reported to his mother and she called police.

The parents agreed to allow the youths to meet Yetman at the arranged time while Young waited nearby. Yetman pleaded guilty to the charges before Alderman Pat Maraglia.

Young said Yetman has served three years in New Jersey prisons for similar offenses.

Satisfactory Progress Seen On Wallenpaupack School

HAWLEY — Satisfactory progress on the new Wallenpaupack Area Joint High School, except for the sewage treatment plant where work has been stopped by a labor dispute, was reported by Fred Schoenagel, clerk for building, at a meeting of the board of education.

Final specifications for furnishings of the $2,000,000 building will be advertised on Sept. 1 and opened the third or fourth week of that month, the board announced.

County Awaits Instructions On Hunt Tags

STRONDSBURG — Warren F. Loney, Monroe County treasurer, was advised yesterday by the Pennsylvania Game Commission to withhold sale of hunting licenses until detailed instructions on procedure are received under recently enacted bills increasing the fees for the licenses.

Under House Bills 364 and 365, a license will be issued to a hunter between 12 and 16 years old for $3.20 and for $5.20 to those older.

A non-resident license costs $25.35. Those between 12 and 16 must furnish the date of birth on their applications for licenses.

Applications for Monroe County's quota of 3,100 antlerless deer licenses will be received by mail only this year, it was announced again by Loney.

No applications will be accepted if postmarked earlier than Sept. 3, 1963. Antlerless hunting permits will be mailed Nov. 7.

Doe Applications

Loney said envelopes with a return address and plainly marked "doe applications" should contain no more than one license application.

The application must be signed and must include the hunter's 1963 hunting license number. A fee of $1.25 includes return postage.

Dates for accepting applications and mailing permits was set by the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

MONROE COUNTY MASTER BUILDERS AND CONTRACTORS ASSN.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Robert Van Vleet, director of the Ottawa News Service, in the Stroudsburgs for a week to get acquainted with the area, unexpectedly found himself subbing as social editor on my night off, and admitting frankly that he's read the social page yesterday for the first time in years.

My first reaction was to feel apologetic. But why? Where else could you get acquainted with an area faster and on a more basic level? Men who skip reading the family pages miss as much as women who automatically turn past the sports pages. News about people has no sex.

Sure, a man may be baffled by the description of the bride's gown and not know the difference between a gusset and a bustle, but the wedding itself may have more direct bearing on his business than the fluctuations on the stock market. Statistical surveys show that even the simplest wedding means about $3,000 worth of immediate business in bridal finery, trousseaus both male and female, new dresses for the wedding guests, gifts, and furnishings for the new home. Future economic impact of the new family can't be estimated.

By the same token, women who can't comprehend baseball trades and league standings, nevertheless can make as much social capital by knowing which of their friends' sons made the Little League or how their husbands made out in the golf match as whose daughter is engaged. Who knows, many a sports widow might even learn to enjoy televised sports?

Men may not have noticed but "Society Pages" have all but vanished from modern newspapers. In their place is family news, which involves both men and women. For every bride there's a bridegroom, for every woman with a 50th wedding anniversary there's a husband, every baby has a father as well as a mother. PTA's, 4-H Clubs, and Scouts come in both sexes.

Admitted certain things are more geared to women's interests: Recipes, fashions, home decorating suggestions, they benefit the whole family. During the club season, men might feel they can safely skip the account of women's club meetings. Until, that is, the committee descends on business men, school boards, or council meetings with full-blown plans for community improvement projects when the men may wish they'd had a little warning.

Changing Your Routine Can Boost You Out Of That Rut

By Roberta Fleming Roach

"Why do so many people with jobs settle for some kind of rut instead of taking a forward-looking viewpoint?" one of our working colleagues asked in a job discussion.

"Every month I travel across this country," he went on, "and in almost every town I see a discouraging number of people who are content to stay in the same old groove from one year to the next instead of looking at what's available in the rest of the world."

"And when they play their hands this way they miss so many things!"

Why Stay In A Rut?

He's right! We all miss so many things when we're willing to rust in our ruts instead of looking for ways to get out of the groove. So, if this downcast picture is an up-to-date picture of you, here are a few starting steps to take to achieve a forward-looking approach.

On A Treadmill

For example, if your rut has become a vicious cycle in which day after day, you (1) get up; (2) leave home; (3) travel the same route to work; (4) do the same work; (5) see the same people; (6) travel the same route home from work; (7) see more of the same people in the evening; and (8) finally go to bed — break the routine by starting, this fall, to expose yourself to something entirely new where you'll meet an entirely new set of people.

This can be a study, cultural, community or fun project. It can even be a new job!

2. When you reach out to meet new people widen your viewpoint by widening your circle of acquaintances to include association with many different kinds of people. In unexpected ways and in unexpected places this can lead you out of a rut!

3. Be enthusiastic about keeping up with everything that's going on all over the country instead of ab-

Teen Politicos Study Campaign At 'Thank You'

Paradise Twp. — Practical politics has its disappointments as well as its rewards, a group of teenagers who assisted the Paradise Twp. Republicans in the recent campaign learned early.

One of the rewards was a swimming party in a private pool and picnic lunch arranged for them by Mrs. Mary Fontanella, committee woman. She expressed her disappointment that only 67.7 per cent of the registered Republican voters had turned out for the election, but also expressed her appreciation to the teenagers for their work.

There had been only one adverse comment from the whole campaign she said, and that from a sticker placed on a car in a parking lot. The teenagers had only distributed cards not stickers and agreed that, even with stickers available, they should not be attached to any property without the owner's permission.

The teenagers had conducted a baby sitting service at the polls on election day because of the summer vacation period. Although disappointed that more parents had not taken advantage of the service, they volunteered their free baby sitting services for next election day, although by telephoned appointment only and in the homes.

Present were John Bowman, Lisa Draie, Charles and Cynthia Hilliard, Phyllis and Phillip Koerner, Nancy Leies and David, Butch, Nelson, Richard Leies and Patricia Storm, who had also helped, were unable to attend because they were working.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

If Coro were manufacturing jewelry just for me, they could not please me more than does their new Glitter for Fall called Venetian Glow. Plastic, in wonderfully rich cathedral colors, is used to simulate stained glass in an antique gold setting.

Our Jewelry Department mounts its display of these unusual ornaments on white satin, the better to dazzle you with the reflected glory. There are pins at two and three dollars; pendants that also have a pin bar and may be used as either at 4.00; earrings at 2.00, and bracelets at 4.00. Many of these are heraldic in mood and have the appearance of being very old. Whenever I look at them I think of the rose window at St. Patrick's . . . the vari-toned drinking glasses from Italy in our Housewares Department . . . and the picture of Sir Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table in my old literature book.

Coro is also responsible for the Coro Casuals that created such a fashion stir last Spring . . . ropes of muted beads in which plastic alternated with bamboo, other lightweight woods, and cork. Women loved them, for they looked amazingly smart with tailored and semi-tailored attire, and were so weightless you almost forgot you were wearing jewelry.

Now there is a new Fall shipment featuring cork, wood, bright beads, and touches of metal. Necklaces of generous length are priced from two dollars to seven fifty; earrings are one and two dollars a pair.

Our Fall jewelry shipments also include some very attractive dark-toned beads at one and two dollars . . . some glittering gilded aluminum chains of matinee length, as well as bead necklaces in twin and triple strand styles at one dollar each . . . and, for the patriot, a smartly furled American flag, gem set, at 2.00.

From Albert Weiss are autumn strawberries! The large, single strawberry pin is 3.00; the pin with two smaller strawberries is 3.00; the individual strawberry pins are 2.00, and earrings are 5.00.

From the same company, I believe, are jeweled pins that look heavily "important." Settings are antique gilt, and the brilliants with which they are studied are richly faceted. These are 3.00 with matching earrings at two.

And do you know the difference between a butterfly and a flutterby? Well, butterfly pins are pins in the form of a butterfly, with large, bright stones glittering against a dark metal setting. Flutterbys are pins shaped like butterflies with wings that quiver on tiny springs—also gem set. The flutterers are 3.00; the immovables, 2.00, with matching earrings at matching prices.

And if you want to make Autumn exclusively YOURS, fashionwise, draw a ring around your accessorizing . . . a Coro ring with a hidden adjustment so that no one will ever guess it is not a genuinely fine and precious piece. These Coro rings are of textured gold, knobby, sometimes almost massive, and imposing . . . set with either turquoise, pearl, or "diamonds." Tell your friends you inherited them from Aunt Mabel. Only an expert would know what a charming fibber you are!

worried about age?

here's truth about hormones for face, neck and hands

NEW YORK (Special) — Reams have been written about hormones. Will they make women of 35 look 16 again? Absolutely not. Will they make women of 60 feel like they were 20 again?

To know the truth about hormones you need to learn just two simple facts: (1) The beauty of a woman's skin starts breaking down as signs of age begin, because the female organs fail to supply enough estrogenic hormones to feed the skin—less and less as you grow older. (2) Estrogenic hormones can be supplied to the skin by rubbing on a penetrating formula containing the hormones.

Here is a text reported in a scientific journal, one of many that showed similarly sensational results: Twenty-five women applied hormones to one side of the face and neck, and to one hand. On the other side and the other hand, a similar preparation containing no hormones was applied the same way.

These are the reports in simple words: Skin lines (or dry-skin wrinkles) quickly dimmed or disappeared from sight as creases and hollows filled out. Blisters and "old-age freckles" faded on hands, face and neck. Skin was softer, clearer, seemed

What happened to newspaper reading with the advent of TV?

ANSWER: NEWSPAPER READING INCREASED. A 10-year study of "Videotown" (New Brunswick, N. J.) made by Cunningham & Walsh advertising agency shows that of all major media, newspapers alone remained unaffected by TV's arrival in the American home. As a matter of fact, the study revealed that newspaper reading actually gained in popularity among adults in the home! Newspapers' popularity with people is a big reason for its popularity with advertisers.

Two Sleeping Giants Wake Up--And Pow!

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda, a couple of sleeping Giants in a power-packed San Francisco line-up, have emerged from their deep slumber with consistent batting performances in their last 13 games.

Mays is on a 13-game hitting streak during which he's collected 23 hits in 58 times at bat, a .397 pace, and lifted his average 17

A Proud Possession

Dirty Shoes:

Glenn's Pride

STROUDSBURG — Glenn Basing, 16-year-old Stroud Union diamond sensation, today has a shoe full of dirt. It's one of his proudest possessions at the moment.

The lean hard-hitting shortstop brought it back home with him yesterday from Yankee Stadium where he played the entire game with the Eastern American Legion All-Stars. His team lost to the U.S. Legion All-Stars, 10-6, but Glenn's fine efforts in the contest certainly did not go unnoticed by the multitude of baseball scouts attending the game.

In three appearances at the plate, Glenn blasted a double and stroked a single, scored two runs and chalked up one RBI. He committed one error afield, while making two putouts and two assists.

His long two-bagger in the second inning — his first trip to the plate in the House That Ruth Built — missed by some 15 feet of reaching the left field stands for a circuit smash. The ball bounced into the seats for a ground-rule double.

The Eastern All-Stars led by a 5-3 margin before the opponents poured across seven runs in the bottom of the sixth on the strength of a grand-slam home run.

Basing's single in the sixth scored a runner from second. As he attempted to steal second, the throw from the catcher went over the second baseman's head and Glenn raced into third. He later scored on a ball hit to deep short.

At the end of the game, Glenn scooped a mound of dirt from the left side of the infield where he had been playing and brought it back home.

It's a good bet that small bit of real estate is not for sale.

The Daily Investor

Protests 'Vicious Smear'

William A. Doyle
Q. I wish to protest your vicious smear of good citizens who are members of rural electric cooperatives. Stockholders of private power companies who write to you deserve objective answers — not diatribes against public power systems.

Public power systems have provided the benefits of low-cost power to the heartland of America — to farms and homes the private electric companies refuse to service. Public power systems have paid their own way and truly represent free enterprise — not socialism.

Why didn't you tell your readers that the profits of private electric companies have been growing and growing and growing?

A. Woweeeee! See what happens when you spout out a few simple facts of life about socialism's sacred cow — so-called "public" power?

The above letter is actually a condensation of a number that came in. Interestingly, those letters all follow the same dogmatic line.

But, even more gratifying are the letters supporting "this column's stand. Those, from investors and/or taxpayers, outrun the screaming letters by better than eight to one.

The previous column — an elementary point. A reader asked who pays for "the propaganda" put out by "public" power groups — specifically an advertisement in a national magazine. The answer was "You do, I do. And so does every other taxpayer in these United States."

That statement, plus the recitation of the cold facts that so-called "public" power is kept afloat by taxpayers' dollars, brought in all the mail.

I never said that the profits of electric utility companies (owned by millions of investors) are not growing. I have written, often, that they are. Those profits are growing because the investor-owned electric utility companies are expanding (by putting investors' money to work) and are ready, willing and able to meet the electric power requirement of this nation.

That's really "free enterprise." Let's not confuse the terms.

Now, I am well aware that some people "benefit" from "public" power. And the number of people getting those benefits has been increasing because "public" power systems have been growing by leaps and bounds.

But let's face facts. "Live in a rural area, where electricity is supplied by a "public" power system owned by a nearby town. And, believe me, at the rates we pay, we don't get low-cost power.

The profits of that tax-sheltered, municipally-owned power system are turned over to that town. So, in effect, we country folks are paying taxes for the townpeople.

Project this on a national level and add in all the dollars of tax breaks given to "public" power and the thing gets fantastic. Every one of those dollars must be made up elsewhere — by investor-owned companies or individual taxpayers.

Is it any wonder that millions of investors and tens of millions of taxpayers should be unhappy and start showing resentment?

Q. I have stocks in 15 different companies, all of which are in a margin account. Last month, the interest on my "debit balance" (about $8,000) have owed the broker for trading on margin) and the commissions I paid the broker for buying and selling stock amounted to more than $750. Would you advise me to stop trading on margin?

A. This column always warns against margin trading. That method may increase your possibility of profit. But it also increases your risk. You evidently have been doing an awful lot of buying and selling. That type of in-and-out trading only adds to your risk.

At the rate you have been going, you might just as well go to Las Vegas and try the dice tables. I don't advise that, either.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)
